

Task for The Drover's Wife

Literary lenses

One way of approaching a text is to consider the social theories or perspectives that can influence how we interpret a text. If we approach a text from a feminist perspective, for instance, then we may be more attuned to focusing on events that depict the treatment of women.

For each of the images below, fill in the outline with a definition and around the outline, provide quotes and evidence from the text that show this perspective at work within the text.
